

At Massachusetts Center for Addiction, we believe that the opposite of addiction is not sobriety, but connection. Active addicts and alcoholics are cut off from their families, communities, and even their physical selves. Therefore, treatment at Massachusetts Center for Addiction is geared towards integration and connection. We utilize evidence-based approaches such as 12 Step facilitation, counseling, and motivational interviewing, in conjunction with, holistic practices (e.g. yoga and meditation) to help the client find relief from the chronic stress of addiction. Only then will he/she be able to maintain sobriety and reconnect with family and friends and discover the things that afford a sense of well-being, meaning, and purpose.
